It's fun when you're in a tunnel or something and you see the shimmer of a SBH run by you, to pretend not to see them. Then once you past them, quickly turn around and kill them. This happened alot last night on "Field". It's pretty funny, because sometimes they'll stop and wait to see if you've seen them. They don't want to uncloak unless they really have to. I'll bet that a few of the SBH I killed last night had beacons intended for our barracks or refinery.
