What good is standing still, so you can't be traced by movement, if you are a light bulb glowing in a dark room. Like a surge protector under a desk, you may not be able to see the surge protected in the shadow of the desk, but you can see the LCDs that are used to indicate if the device is ON, PROTECTED, or GROUNDED. Or like a light house on shore during the night, you can see it from a distance from a boat. These skins make you light up like a light bulb, screwing with your silent, making EZ for the enemy to spot you and KO you. You can stand behind the sniper box in field all day, not having been seen by ppl without the skins, but one person who is using the skins sees you as clear as day in that dark box.
