Came up with this while I was playing city flying. Here it is. In city, if your base is under attack by orca's hiding behind the smaller office buildings run up the stairs and throw c4 down onto them, or if your out of c4 and your not an expensive character you can jump ontop of the craft and fire at it until you fall off. Later once they wise up to this and try to kill you while your on the roof theres a good chance that they will be hit by the defence.
