When no one's saying anything you know 60\% of the time that you are dealing with a bunch of Rambos. It really sucks because communication is the name of the game when it comes to Renegade in general and teamwork. If no one knows who's attacking/defending and when, or there's no recon, it's most likely you'll lose. If I get little to no response on a game if I'm chatting about mining the base or making plans, I'll usually leave. You can pretty much find me most of the time on [HDC]Monkeylovers, seeing as that's my home server, but I'll occasionally hit the NuT or FUD servers, and I'd really like to get a chance to play on WOLF (can't seem to get in, it's so full all the time) because I ehar there's really good communication and teamwork, which makes for more fun games, IMO.
