best mammy encounter I had was when I was a tech and the mammy blew my buggy up Well I ran to it's most vulnerable spot-it's side. I then planted both my timed charges and remotes on it, after that(the guy was trying to shoot me the entire time-mammy can't hit peeps within a certain radius) I ran to the other side and when he moved forward or backward I matched him. well the timed charges went off and I detonated my remotes and he blew sky high With a few headshots the enemy pilot(rofl, he was a soldier) I ran back to base, grabbed a refill and a new buggy. 1. that guy was a moron because he had no engine support-if he did then I most likele couldn't have blown him up. Next he was piloting with a soldier instead of an Engine/hotwire/tech(jackass) so all these factors plus some of the mammys severe drawbacks they are relatively easy to kill. BUT they * when they have about 2-3 engines/hotwires supporting them. if they go out with no support they deserve to have it blown up
