About the only time I care at all for driving the mammoth, is if I'm sure I'll have at least 2 engies or hotwires backing me up. And that almost never happens in non-clan games. You'll occasionally get engie help for a very short while, until they get sniped or bored. To be true to the "roots" of the game, shouldn't the mammy at least have good anti-air? In C&C, the mammoth had no problem swatting 2 or 3 apaches, while attacking ground targets at the same time. I vote for a little upgrading, then I might want to use it more.
