quote: i'd rather play with one leader and everyone else listening to them than anything else, that way u can listen to the leader and the followers will be able to do those things, most experienced player should be leader, maybe have 2 leaders, like an offensive and defensive Em, I doubt that would work mainly because most people wouldn't listen. Of course you are right that if it worked there would be a lot more teamplay. The thing is though that would everyone enjoy the game? After all the most experienced player would remain the most experienced player for the duration of the entire game.
