My main point is that if people would treat their tanks better and get better tank skills they wouldn't need engis,techs, or hotwires to follow them....and if you have read my posts on how to get good tank skills then maybe you wouldn't be sounding so dumb right nowthe thing about that, this is a team game. engies happen to repair things and that should be used to help out tanks and such. if you don't support the tanks you normally get shut into your own base by enemy tanks and snipers. you are terrible for team skills. your tank strategies are mostly common sense (at least to me. no offense to anyone who didn't know them.) regardless of a player's tank skills they can't win the battle all alone. a single tank doesn't stand much of a chance when the enemy is advancing on it. you need support. you need hotwires and engies following the tanks to help the team win. you should worry about your team before yourself. that's my strategy.
