What I really hate is people who like to tell other people to play defense or damage control and think that They alone rule the game and should be the hero. I love it when some hotty or tech destroys a perfectly placed c4 job or runs away just as my armer starts to decrease. I also really like being blamed when you fail to save a building while half of the enemy team is trying to destroy it. Another thing that kinda gets irratating is when half the team bails just because we're losing. (that one really helps turn the tide)
