I was in a game on field last night where I was part of some great teamwork. We lost the game, but it was the best rally I've ever been in yet. Nod got together really quickly and caught us with our pants down with a three flamer rush on the agt. It went down, and so did our spirits. Usually, in this game, once it's down, it's over. The score quickly became like 17,000 to 10,000. Well, somehow, through an incredible effort, we managed to hang on another 30 minutes, camp their entrance with mammies, and get the score to 28,000 to 25,000. I was very proud to not have been stomped when by all rights, we should have been. The best part was that Nod was playing very well, so I was surprised at how well we were able to survive, and even, for a briend time, flourish.
