Ever notice that usually after your first building or two goes down in your base your team will finally pull it together and work as a team? I mean, the people who have no intention of working as a team all seem to leave when the first building goes down, leaving only the people who still care about winning. I've noticed that the more buildings a team I'm on loses the better we start playing. I've been on teams where we just stomped the other team and our team got so lax that noone was even in our base anymore. (So they got us with a placed beacon! Ugh) Sometimes I wish FF was on so I could just take out a building on my team myself so they'd get their butts in gear.
