When placing a nuke/ion becon you should find a place that is dark, or an area that is concealed either on the outside or inside. It can still destroy a building if you put it very close to it, if you are good you can get in the base without anyone noticing and then you won't have tanks shooting you. Also there is a better way of placing the timed C4, but I won't tell you cause if I play a game with one of you in it you'll foil my plans. You probably already know what I'm talking about, but to those who don't (and there are many)...you're in for frustrating times.
