You know, I keep rediscovering that light tank. In maps like field, it can more than hold it's own. We had three light tanks camped at the GDI entrance on Fields last night, with some engineers, and we kept even the mammy's at bay for a good 15 minutes. As for the Mammy, I agree that it is both useless and very very usefull. It really depends on the map and the situation. They are the best "camping" vehicles. Line up three outside of the Nod base, with engi support, and there isn't much to be done about it.
