ever hear the term "stuck up prude"? This is a forum for talking about Renegade, so telling someone to go elsewhere because you don't agree with them is lame. People are talking all over these boards about "mods" and when "mods" are created for single player, that is way cool. When someone uses the term "cheat" to get the same result (like enabling the Recon Bike for Single Player), all the prudes show up and show their @ss. The original poster did not state what form of "cheat" he wanted. It could have been unlimited ammo, invulnerability, allowing multiple people to coop the single player game, it could have been anything. The next time someone talks about a Mod, insert the word Cheat and see if you are still going to be a prude about how you should feel others should play their own game. PS, I don't know of any actual cheats, but you can get Easter Eggs enabled. Hit F8 to bring up the prompt and type extras fnkqrrm and hit enter. Then when you go into the Vehicle/Infantry selection, hold the Alt key down and new selections will show up. This only works in non ladder games for multiplayer and I think it works in Practice Mode. I don't know of any other easter eggs, but right now a lot of players are developing Mods for Renegade. In a month or so you should see a lot of Mods being passed around.
