I have cable internet and I must say that the demo on Gamespy is unplayable with a server listed with a ping higher then 150ms. If you have the demo version look for a server running at about 90ms or less. However, The retail version obviously has far better netcode as I have never experienced lag like I did with the demo. I have never really noticed any difference related to WOL or Gamespy...like mentioned before it's the game servers that effect performance. BTW I usually find faster servers on Gamespy if I uncheck "My country only"...but then again I live in Canada.
