yes, thanks.. nice tips even for us that have been playing awhile. i usually go engi right off but find there's not much to do. better to find the enemy harvester and do some damage. when i can afford it, i always go tech unless i see several running around the base. i always try to react to what the team is doing and buy something useful to support them. this is not quake 3, it requires teamwork just like a strategy game and if more players realized that, they'd be involved in more victories and climb the ladder instead of dropping down on the loser's side...
