OK,I just found a very entertaining way to play this map and it helps your team out. This only works if you're nod. The cloaked skin makes for the perfect thief. It might have been the server i was on but the GDIs last night were not paying close attention to me.I think Xuber is going to think twice about repairing his own vehicle on the battle field. But first, do you get credits for stealing enemy units? i kept ending up with over $3000 dollars... and bought a ton of tanks for my side.But here's what i did. The first was pure luck. I was cloaked on the low ridge working my way around when medium tank came up behind me (thought i was goign to be a bug on a windshield for sure) and out pops an engi and begins to repair. I didn't even wait for him to finish. I hopped in and promptly ran him over. The best part, no one saw. SO i blasted their harvester twice!!! and then got 1 humvee and 2 medium tanks. It helped though that my team was clueless and kept shooting me. It confused the others side.But he is my tactic that i developed. GO out as a cloaked player, especially if Nod is struggling. Come out the tunnel and cross and stand at base of mountain facing back to your base. the GDIs that can see cloaked people usually don't look directly below or behind them. Do not engage... watch the action for a bit. I noticed almost always someone backs out of the action almost right up to you to hop out and repair. by not engaging no one looks around, they think they're safe. And the snipers above don't look for you. So walk up to the tank, steal it and make sure to run over the engi! roll forward like you're going to engage NOD... at this point no one is aware. Make your way to the rights side of the entrance like you're going to fire at Nod, but line up a GDI tank so it looks like he was in your way. I took out 4 tanks 2 of which were mammoth by the time the guy that oringially owned the tank spotted me. All the GDIs thought it was from in front of them, not next to 'em. My team shot at me too so it was a great ruse. The best part, i pulled it off twice!!!
