Not to ***** at you but, there seems to be alot of instances where i have seen people describe their maps where "a cave where a meteor has smashed through". But mine, the meteor didnt get through, it hangs on the ceiling. and their is a garden of tib crystals on the ceiling.The hole from where your meteor crashed through, you should put some tiberium residue on it.Good work ACK.Understand the concept of meteors. They don't leave residue until they impact because of the extremely high temperatures which destroy the residue which occurs at the first impact. Crashing into a cave would make it impact and lose its outer rock shell, which leaves the tiberium to grow and spread inside the cave.
