

---

Subject: "Deezer" Studios

Posted by Steppo on Thu, 15 Jul 2004 03:16:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

KIRBY098

This just gets easier the longer I do it.

More or less because once you run out of valid points, which you did quite some time ago. You just start making stuff up as you go.

Quote:

That's the beauty of this schleppo.

Whoa! Lost the typing skills there. Here, let me help you... it's S-t-e-p-p-o. Ok? Got that?

Now we've gone from juvenile "You need therapy" jokes to "Let's see how badly we can contort someone's name and mock them for our own creativity!" I'm impressed.

Quote:

I have fun, and people like you get all bent out of shape.

Who's getting bent out of shape? Pissant flammers like yourself don't get me upset. Especially when they just flounder around in random insults, as you have so skillfully displayed.

Quote:

Lost? This isn't a contest. If it were, you would "lost" the second you clicked submit on the very first post.

See, there's the problem. There wasn't an issue here until we went from "Deezer has taken a logo." to just random, uncalled for flaming against the person who started the thread. You drew the line, I stepped across it. Your move.

Quote:

Maybe you should go be loud on the renalert forums again. They seem to think you "rant" like a pro.

Maybe you shouldn't post anymore without thinking first. I think you talk out of your ass like a pro.

Quote:

No accounting for taste I guess.

Whoa whoa wait a sec. At this point, I see 4 people agreeing with/defending my opinion, and either leaving it at that, or giving defending arguments. Then 3 people who gave no defending arguments other than not giving a shit in a thread that they continually posted in, or just up and flamed me.

So do you mean to infer that taste resides in people just insulting other people for having a strong opinion on something, and then not backing up their own reasoning for flaming in the first place?

Man, that's some messed up thought process right there.

Anyway, it's obvious that people won't go to this thread anymore, because it's turned into a massive flame war. I'm just going to be the more mature person and back out of this. It's a game, that much is true. However it's a game developed by a company that I held in highest regards, and I feel justified in making such a big to-do about it. It must have worked, because Deezer is now working on a new logo, so the issue, and the argument that goes along with it, is over.

Kirby, you go ahead and say what you want. I recommend we just drop this. If not, it's on your hands now.

---