Actually, he didn't say his IQ was 650. He said it was "bouble 650s." I think he meant to say "double 650s," which also makes me think he meant SAT score, not IQ. And SAT scores are out of 800/800, so a 650/650 doesn't impress me at all.

EDIT:

Also, flyingfox, a lot of people with high IQ's are dumb as fuck. I went to MIT, which is apparently the best technical school in the world, and I was amazed by the sheer number of idiots present. (Granted, the general population is somehow even stupider than that, but they were still pretty damn dumb.) My point though is that even "smart" people are often too stupid to ever do anything worthwhile (such as create a monster).

EDIT PART TWO:

I believe Frankenstein was actually the mad scientist, not the monster.
