

---

Subject: Litmus test for liberals

Posted by warranto on Thu, 12 Aug 2004 23:09:27 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

JavaxcxJust for the record, and this is bi-partisen:

Don't make judgements based on whether "Mr X voted against blah", find out WHY they didn't vote on a perticular issue, or why they did. Most people aren't as heartless as the media and those campaign commericals make them out to be.

And from what I understand about they way American politics works, bills are past almost in bulk. One can be attached to another, and if what it is attached to passes, so does the other.

If I'm wrong, someone please correct me.

---