I would say that's quite an incomplete definition, first off. And more importantly, the man is implying that what was said was not intentional.

And I never said anything was wrong with the grammar of the sentence, I said "the grammatical meaning...", etc.

You say "not spoken in the best way" even though your own definition says "wrongly". "Not the best" and "wrong" aren't exactly the same.

I'm going to go to bed. I'll pick this up in the morning. Good night!
