Flaming is a problem everywhere, and I would think that if an introduction thread really "bored" someone they wouldn't even bother reading it to begin with. I could also care less what some random idiot over the internet thinks about me, like flyingfox.

I'm just glad a majority of you don't follow in, flyingfox's, perfect example of how not to act. I appreciate the time everyone has taken in this thread, but I won't bother posting in it any longer, because it's just going to end up a pointless flame war.
