You could always send me that camera, I could use another one. I'll send you my own little present which is an Olympus 2.0 megapixel camera that can develop its own photographs when you insert a type of Polaroid film for it.

Some of those images look beyond fucked up. I can almost feel evil in the air from looking at them, gives me a creepy feeling. It's almost like the camera owner was running from something. Why the fuck else would he leave a camera like that in a forest that looks spooky as hell?
