Ahhh, the blame game begins again...

Does it dawn on any of you that if Nader were "stealing" votes from Bush, it would be the Republicans bitching about him being on the ballot?

And as far as I know, there's no law that explicitly forbids a candidate from running for President when he'll be taking votes away from one major party or the other. Major elections have been decided that way- Howard Taft was voted out of office because former President Theodore Roosevelt drew too many Republican votes, allowing Democrat Woodrow Wilson to be elected.

Is Nader taking votes that otherwise would have gone to Kerry? Yes, of course he is. He's trying to get elected; naturally he's going to try to get all the votes he can. If you don't want him in office, don't fucking vote for him. It's that simple.
