I live in ohio. There is shit like that all over. Directly behind my house is a huge area of woods. There are a few burnt down houses and other stuff back there. They have been desecated like the building in those pictures. Alot of the buildings are small houses and little shacks. I have no clue how long they have been there but by my estimate pretty old.

Walking through them at night is pretty creepy , Even with one of those huge water proof flash lights (the huge batterys). Ive never seen anything or anyone else down there besides woodland creatures. (Deer , Skunks , Racoons ect..) I guess Ohio doesnt suck that much.

I have seen stuff like this:

I se more of not abandoned buildings but more burned down buildings in the middle of no where.
