

---

Subject: Damn that's a big protest.

Posted by Javaxcx on Mon, 30 Aug 2004 02:56:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

hydra1945In that case, the UN violates the sovereignty of every one of its member states. The UN demands that each one of its member states follows each and every one of the international laws it passes, or suffer the consequences. Those member states are no longer sovereign since the UN has a higher power over those states if they violate any one of those laws.

All of those Member States signed the Charter. They didn't have to, but they did anyway. If you'll notice, Iraq is, and was a Member State. So they're under those same laws as well. If you have any questions about the Charter and the laws in it that everyone said "OMG OK!!!111" to, then take a read: <http://www.un.org/aboutun/charter/>

---