

---

Subject: URL Hijacking

Posted by Chronojam on Mon, 30 Aug 2004 21:41:46 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Aircraftkiller We never registered <http://www.cncreborn.de> and called it ours. Lefthanded took .com because he thought it would be funny. He has not been a part of our team for well over a year and a half, and it was done in the last year.

It was not our actions which provoked this. Dumbass.

That forum n00b misspoke by alleging "we" did anything "first".

Hey, suppose we just did that last week, that I got up and said "Renalert dev team claims cncreborn.com as ours!" ...

First, they didn't have it anyways... So NOBODY "stole" that domain. It wasn't in use, nor was it going to be. If Reborn wants to go get <http://www.Renalert.de> to be funny, LET THEM. We're not using it, nor do we plan to.

Second, should that prompt the theft of 2, 3, 4 names? That's not quite eye-for-an-eye, is it?

---