Nightma12let hope they dont fuck it up this time, like generals >.<

Great, for some reason I can't view the website, I get a timeout. What's on it? Nightma makes me think this is important.

Update:

Ok, first I tried accesing the page with a diffrent pc at home, but that didn't work. But thanks to a friend with a freebsd server, I could acces the website with the text based webbrowser lynx. Txt internet rules.

Anyway's although the news this time actually comes from a game website and so has a bit of responsibility for what they post. The way they got there news sounds very unreliable. How many times have we not heard people saying, a friend of mine works at EA and he knows this and this. Gaming company's have some strict rules about what's aloud to tell and what not.

Although first making rumors about a game, could be the newest marketing strategy from EA to hype a game.

Let's hope if there ever will be a game, it's good.
