bigejoe14The man who made that movie obviously knows nothing about plane crashes. A plane flying 550 miles per hour will literally vaporize into nothing after slamming into a building.

There would still be large pieces of plane garbage, like a tail fin or something. At least, that's how it seems to go down in every other plane crash. [Not just from what I saw in that video]

Well, that's a really neat video, but I want to see more. Nice find.
