I would like a clean design similar to http://www.clanbase.com

The design I want to use for the site would be done in "boxes" of a non-consistent width. For example, just like ClanBase.com, the titles
the boxes should be a repeating image that will stretch to fit wherever I use it. And, just like the change I made on the current home page, I would like the banner to be aligned on the left and one of the "boxes" on the right.

So basically, you would be designing a banner that's non-specific to any game and designing a repeating image for the box headers. Please also plan on the colors changing so that you or I could change the colors around to create other color themes for users to choose from.

For the first design I would prefer to stick to shades of blue and either black, white, or any shade of gray (or a combination of those colors). I would pick Red but I think that would seem to favor Nod at first.

So, something clean, not too busy, I also still plan to have drop-down menus under the banner on the new site as well, but I will work out how they look and fit, just don't attach the banner to the rest of the design.

Thanks for wanting to participate, and good luck! If your design wins, your prize can double to $100 if you separate the images and code the HTML to put them together. However, for this contest, you only need to submit a single image.

If you have any questions, let me know!
