Toolstylepicking at other people's spelling and grammatical errors have nothing to do with arguments you are in yet you still do it.

Option A: "I don't think Kerry would be a good president."

Option B: "i dont tink kerri wud b a good presdent"

Which option looks more like it was written by an intelligent person who knows about what he is talking?

Anything and everything you write on any internet forum is judged at first by your grammar. Your arguments are completely worthless if you can't take the time to construct them using simple rules of grammar.
