

---

Subject: Command and Conquer DS

Posted by gam3rj on Thu, 02 Dec 2004 06:23:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

C&C has been ported, many times in fact. I'm sure somewhere, the source for the first couple games are locked away for future use. Even though the original Westwood team no longer exists, with the exception of Sperry and a few others, a C&C game could still be made. I'm not asking for the original, but more or less a C&C game in general. As for the original, they could implement skirmish into it.

The reason I have more confidence in this is because there simple seems to be no logical reason for EA not to do this. They said they wanted to support the DS, and this would give them a large profit, mainly because of the possible short developement time (if they built off an existing game). Also, not only would it make money, but people would like the game. It seems that those two things never happen at the same time anymore in games.

Whether or not EA decides to listen to their fans, this game would be a highlight for the DS. No questions asked.

---