

---

Subject: Small issue, nothing major

Posted by snipesimo on Fri, 03 Dec 2004 20:05:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

HulkcoreIntended misuse is not an oxymoron. You can, and I'm sure quite often do, choose to use something for an application other than its intended purpose. So the two terms do not contradict each other, therefore, not an oxymoron. Now, if he had said that he properly misused it, that would be an oxymoron.

Intended misuse is an oxymoron because the intent of an object is for it to be used properly, intending to use it improperly, therefore, is contradictory, and is an oxymoron.

---