

---

Subject: Small issue, nothing major

Posted by Hulkcore on Fri, 03 Dec 2004 21:29:57 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Close, but still wrong. In the context that he said it, it is not an oxymoron. He was saying that his MISUSE was intended, not that something was intended to be misused. He purposely misused the word, the word was not designed to be misused. A baseball bat was not intended to be used as a club, but I might intend to misuse it as a club. If the person making the baseball bat intended that people use it as a club, it could be seen as an intended misuse, and therefore an oxymoron. But not in the sense that he was misusing the word on purpose.

---