Quote:I also find it funny you mention that living is a challenge, it seems to me all Christians just pray to their 'GOD' for their life to work out. Why don't you solve the problem yourself?

I couldn't agree more. I am a devout Roman Catholic, but even I agree that God isn't here to solve all our problems. However...

Quote: I also wonder why you thank your GOD when something good happens and curse your luck when something bad happens.....why not blame your GOD? Is he not responsible for your outcome in life?

The problem is, people DO blame God for their "bad luck". Think of it this way though. Would you rather erroneously thank someone for something they haven't done, or erroneously blame someone for something that is not their fault?
