Wow, you completely miss the point, don't you? Aircraftkiller and icedog are trying to HELP Slash with his map, not tear it apart. Others are being a little less helpful, but they do bring up a good point. The map has to make some sense, and having lighting come from nowhere is a little far fetched. That's the only concern, so I don't call it flaming, if multiple people see the same thing that could be changed. Retardin and other morons see it automatically as flaming because they're not praising it. Since when is praising something you don't like constructive? Oh, that's right, it isn't.
