Think about it.

I agree that our definitions are about the same. So are you trying to say this guy has a chronic illness or disabled? No, you're trying to insult his intelligence. But being an invalid and having some sort of diminished mental capacity are not mutually exclusive. It is very possible for an invalid to be mentally normal, like Christopher Reeves or even extremely intelligent, like Steven Hawkins.

There's not much to think about if you know what the word means.
