sventjuhmy problme is if i want to start renegade to install it it says u must have admin privilges also before i uninstakled renegade..

You need to aquire the Administrator password or have somebody with Admin privilages to log on to your computer.
When in an Administrator account, goto Control Panel > User Accounts.
Find your username, and change this to the Administrator Group in one of the selections.

Log back into your account, you will find this error solved.

So, what has the above just done?
It has told Windows that you are an owner of the computer and you require unlimited access to all files and settings.

If you are still having trouble. Post again with your computer configuration, (e.g. Windows Version, Network Configuration - is it on a domain or home network? or even neither?)
