SpoonyADM you just fight fire with fire. Do whatever is needed to counteract the opponents strategy, and have a counter ready for that counter.

Mind games I tell ya.

So what you're basically saying is, if everyone on the opposition is using ridiculously overpowered weaponry to compensate for their lack of skill and get disproportionate amounts of points for what they're actually doing, I should do the same.

That's one way to look at it. There's nothing disproportionate about it though. If it's been in a game for 3 years without being talked about or been dealt with till now then it's not really disproportionate.
