

---

Subject: As if we could pretend this wouldn't come around...

Posted by Javafx on Fri, 31 Dec 2004 20:49:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

=[DT=gbull=[L]=]Your right java, it is hipocracy. Hipocritical that they support sanctions on them while members of the UN give sadaam what he needs and money. The fact that they lie to their own member nations just because they dont like them is why they cant be trusted and shouldnt have ANY say in what we do. And yes they are a corrupt mob. I dont blame George W for going on with the war without the UN's permission, I blame the UN for not giving permission fast enough. We as a country needed to deploy fast before the Iraqis got entrenched, had we not then it might have costed much more time and more soldiers lives. But again the UN doesnt care about US soldiers, they just care about how much they can get away with, without us knowing about it. You claim that the are humanitarians, while that may be true it holds no justification for their actions. And many of the terms of the charter where broken by the UN themselves, SO WHY THE HELL SHOULD WE FOLLOW IT? And to those iraqis that have freedom and no fear of being raped and torured, I believe that they will agree: The ends justifies the means.

"Well HE did it" isn't legal justification for anything. And take special note: it certainly doesn't make what the UN OR the US have done legal by any means.

The fact of the matter is, you signed a contract saying you wouldn't go fucking around with other member states and their governments unless the Security Council says so, and they did not. Here we are today, and the U.S. and the coalition are in the wrong legally on the matter. Therefore, the ends cannot possibly justify the means because the means to which the ends have come about have been illegal in nature. That too, gbull, is hypocrisy on the part of the United States and their coalition as well.

And I'm going to let you in on a little secret, the Polish probably didn't give a damn who liberated them from Hitler. In comparison, this argument has no merit in this discussion.

Quote:And your right, i dont like the French, gotta problem with that? i dont care, thats just the way it is. If they dont like us just for the sake of hating us, I can do the same.

Bigotry isn't cool. Especially when you don't know that all the French don't like you. I suggest you open your eyes and see that the French, like Americans, or Europeans, or Germans, or whatever, are generally a good people. And what you spew here is nothing but hatred.

---