That's because they were dollar store stuff. George Lucas hyped the film with drawings to the toy manufacturing sect even before beginning production of the film. As part of his master plan he got them working on profiting from the sales. Once the Storm trooper halloween costumes had been out for a while they were sent to Dollar stores where George Lucas waited to greedily gobble them up for his production. He passed them out to all the hobos he dragged off the streets and had an expensive of about 150$ for the first one (He reused about 100 storm trooper costumes and spent the rest on liquor. George Lucas would make the Frugal Gourmet proud.
