I would consider a bomb that makes the skin super sensitive to sunlight an act of terrorism. That's just not right... It gives me the heebie jeebies thinking about it. I've been sunburned really bad many times in my life and its about the worst thing... Blow them the fuck up but don't intentionally sunburn them... So horrible... (Yes I know the atomic bomb sunburned people when it was dropped on Japan and that's a very negative side effect however at least it wasn't intentionally designed to do that)
