Just because I'm non-violent doesn't mean I don't realize when peace won't work. Military action should always be the last resort to any situation, and defending yourself is always the last resort as well. It's not as if I'm going to take pot shots at people if the world ends... But in a situation like that, I need more than just an athame and a crystal ball. I doubt the gods would fault me for shooting up some poor bastard because he was trying to kill me and take my food and supplies.

I don't do contemplation often, if at all. That's the path of one seeking to be a perfect mystic.
