It doesn't have to be a company to accept liability for its work. Any legal action can be taken against it - to clarify, if EA wanted to shut down Reborn (Which they should, it makes more of a mockery of C&C than Generals and RA2 do combined), they could do it because you face accountability to them if they initiate a lawsuit.

If someone here sued the Reborn team on behalf of the people who would join to receive compensation for loss of data or damage to their computer, you would be accountable.

Believe it.
