Chronojammmsgtpainall I can say is, when you all stop bitching and start taking action, be sure to give me a call... I'd love to fly anywhere in the world just to sit in court and hear the judge when he reads the suit..

Maybe you should try Judge Judy.. she might hear you out.

You never know these days though. Originally posted over at <http://www.renalert.com> :

You're comparing a case where a woman deleted game data on her boyfriends computer, and he pressed charges against her in the same town.. Most folks here don't seem to get the whole "Atlantic" issue in this argument for some reason.

Go ahead, take a guy from Europe to court, where are you going to file, Florida? Germany? The Netherlands? You get to spend all that money on court fees, plane tickets, hotels, appearances, etc, etc; in hopes that a judge will award you with a replacement Windows98 computer? and worst case scenario, you're out all your cash, then get to pay for all their court costs too..

Like I said, this seems right up Judge Judy's alley; if she does international cases that is.
