What made me laugh is that, that whole issue was on British news as well. Im migrating to Maryland in March (from England) and I'll be just North of Virginia (where I will live im able to see the border from) and I will be taking regular trips each year to a resort in Virginia, guess I cant wear my hipsters anymore then..... :rolleyes:

Im not against girls wearing their pants so low that you can see their thong (i dont do it as a fashion statement, but its hard to keep everything where it should be...female fashion is so impractical but it looks good so....) I am however against it when I go into my local ASDA store (Wal*Mart for the Americans) and I see a girl who could be no older than 12 wearing a thong really high and her jeans so low...that is immoral and asking for trouble, especially considering how many sickos are out there. I damn sure wont let my baby girl dress like that until she's 16 at least!
