

---

Subject: Saturday poker...

Posted by NeoSaber on Sun, 27 Feb 2005 06:05:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Oddly enough I actually found the parts about Sean Hannity, Ann Coulter and Rush Limbaugh funny. The rest wasn't put together well though. Most should just be cut out, but a few changes might improve the humor. Dick Cheney should be replaced with Saddam Hussein so Colin Powell would be trying to prove Saddam has more than he's showing. The Alan Colmes bit made no sense, he should be stumbling over the democrat's talking points or something along that line. The Zell Miller line (although I smirked a bit) is based wrong since he would be a conservative democrat so it loses humor when you stop to think. The Brit Hume line doesn't sound close enough to Brit Hume to me. Having Tony Snow, or maybe Bill O'Reilly say it might make it funny... maybe. The Matt Drudge jokes weren't very good, except that last one, "Did The Editors claim to have "a pair of Jews"?" had me laughing.

If it were up to me, I would have tossed John Gibson in claiming that "skip straights" are valid and it's only European propaganda that says otherwise.

Seriously everyone, if you can't laugh at the liberal world view, what can you laugh at?

---