I'm somewhat proud to say that I actually know this man.

Quote:<erno> hm. I've lost a machine.. literally _lost_. it responds to ping, it works completely, I just can't figure out where in my apartment it is.

Now what happened was that he had people coming over so he just started shoving computers here and there, clearing up the mess in his room and all such, and he threw one on to the top most shelf in a closet, later did a pinged on his LAN and found this IP that he had no idea where it came from, pinged it again, saw what it was running as and all such yet was unable to find the damned thing.

I strive to be as geeky as him.
