Banned? Not to my knowledge.

Legal action? Good luck. You put your work in a public directory where one of my forum members found all of your artwork assets. I simply posted one of the most horrible pieces of shit you made up for everyone to see, and now you cry foul?

There's no legal basis for any claim you could make with this. Joey was infringing on our intellectual copyright by violating the standards set forth for registering domain names. Since we're not taking your domain name after it expires, there's absolutely nothing you can do except pull your head out of your collective asses and learn how to put your files in a secure location where someone like fatcat can't just waltz in; he downloaded whatever he wanted because not only was the folder unprotected, the files weren't either.

You're a bunch of retards.
